Background

Scope and Content

The LeRoy T. Walker Africa News Service Archive is an extensive resource file assembled by Africa News Service (ANS) over the course of two decades in support of its news gathering efforts about Africa-related issues and U. S. foreign policy towards Africa. The collection spans the years from approximately 1960 to 1995, with the bulk of the materials dating from 1978 through 1994. Newspaper clippings, magazine articles, press releases, newsletters, brochures, and reports comprise the collection. Much of the material is gathered from mainstream media sources and government documentation in the United States, Europe, Africa, and other parts of the world. In addition, the collection includes significant resources from alternative, minority, and special interest presses world-wide that may be difficult to locate elsewhere. The archive contains scarce and difficult-to-locate materials such as numerous publications produced by non-governmental organizations and grass-roots/community groups that are/were involved in efforts related to independence movements, economic development, and human rights issues in Africa.

The archive is arranged in several series that provide a perspective on African politics and development from almost every country in the world. The heart of the archives is comprised of files about each African country. There are also significant files on U.S. politics and foreign policy and the United Nations. As ANS is located in North Carolina, there was a specific effort to document the activities and interests of North Carolinians as related to African issues. The archive encompasses a wide range of topics including agriculture, children, economics, education, health, history, politics, peace negotiations, social conditions, war, wildlife, and women. There are files on individuals, media organizations, political and cultural groups, corporations, and lobbyists. The collection documents the movement for African independence and economic development in the latter half of the twentieth century.

The archive is named in honor of LeRoy T. Walker, long-time supporter and honorary chair of the ANS Board of Directors. Mr. Walker was president-emeritus of the U. S. Olympic Committee and chancellor-emeritus of North Carolina Central University. A past president of The Athletic Congress, he had a multi-faceted career in sports, physical education and educational administration; he received numerous honors and honorary degrees. He coached U. S. Olympic teams and trained and coached many African and American athletes. In the 1960s he served as director of programming and training for Africa at the Peace Corps in Washington, D.C.

Also transferred with the archive is a large number of Africa-related books, periodicals, and other printed materials. These items are being integrated and cataloged as part of Perkins Library's holdings on Africa and are identified in the on-line catalog by the (corporate) author entry: Africa News Service (Durham, N.C.) Archives.

The addition (9450 items, dated 1952-1993 and undated, bulk 1952-ca. 1980, 18.20 linear feet) contains resource files, newspaper clippings and other media, and periodicals, books, and pamphlets on various topics pertaining to South Africa and Southern Africa (especially Rhodesia and Zimbabwe). Topics include labor, industry, the economy, and foreign trade with South Africa; social conditions in South Africa including the state of Indian South Africans; and student, Christian, and other political movements against apartheid, including the National Union of South African Students and the University Christian Movement. Also includes 3 black-and-white photographs, and 3 microfiche.

Acquired as part of the John Hope Franklin Collection of African and African-American Documentation. (01-156)

Biographical/Historical

Africa News Service (ANS) is a non-profit U. S. news agency founded in 1973. It is a leading information source on Africa in the United States and works in partnership with African news agencies and periodicals to make available current and background materials on all aspects of African life, politics, and culture. Through its efforts, coverage of Africa has been more frequent, more substantive, and more accurate, filling a vital gap for policy makers, educators, journalists, diplomats, scientists, religious groups, development analysts, and business and labor leaders. Widely known for its periodical Africa News, the award winning ANS also prepares special articles and series for major newspapers and broadcast programs and provides behind-the-scenes consultation and briefing for news agencies and individual journalists. Keeping pace with innovative computer technologies, ANS shifted in 1993 from printed to electronic publication by establishing Africa News Online. Through this on-line service ANS engages in computerized news gathering and distribution and e-mail communications with reporters in Africa. This on-line service is distributed commercially by international vendors such as Lexis/Nexis and Financial Times Information and is on the World Wide Web at www.africanews.org.

ANS is located in Durham, N. C. and is led by a trio of Duke graduates: Executive Director Bertie Howard ('69), Executive Editor Tamela Hultman ('68), and President and Managing Editor Reed Kramer ('69). In 1996 ANS and Duke University embarked on two collaborative ventures, the Center for Africa and the Media (CAM) as well as the the LeRoy T. Walker Africa News Service Archive. CAM is a joint program with Duke University's African and African American Studies Program that will help develop curricular offerings and conduct scholarly research as well as initiate visits and international exchanges with journalists and media scholars.

Arrangement

The collection is retained as it was assembled by ANS. The files were collected over two decades by a variety of staff members and volunteers. As issues in Africa evolved, subject files were established, emphasized or de-emphasized, resulting in some overlap in focus and sometimes inconsistency in filing. Many of the folder titles include span dates; however, it is not unusual to find materials dated earlier or later. As noted previously, the collection spans the period of the 1960s through 1995. Some dates on the folder titles are noted with the prefix "thru" or "through", or a dash, e.g., "-1977". This indicates that the materials in the files dated before and up to 1977. If there is a dash after the date, e.g., " 1983-", this indicates the files date 1983 forward. The span dates on the container list sometimes differ from the dates on the folder title. In preparing the container list, student workers sometimes looked within the folder to determine the actual span dates and listed this information. Attempts were made by ANS staff to arrange materials chronologically within the folders. Over time with numerous people using and filing the materials, some of this arrangement within the folder may have been lost.

Sometimes within the folders there are white slips of paper with a bibliographic citation. This is an indication that there is a relevant article in a periodical. The periodical title is often noted by an acronym. A key to the list of acronyms can be found after the List of Series below. Most of the periodicals cited should be available in Duke University's Perkins Library in hard copy, microform, or electronically.

Occasionally there are files labelled with just the letter of the alphabet, preceding folders with information about a specific topic. Such files were established when there were only one or two articles about the subject and a separate folder was not yet warranted. For example in the series, "Persons," there is a file for each letter of the alphabet, preceding the files labelled by individuals' names. This indicates that the file contains materials on several people whose last name begins with that letter of the alphabet. There are a few terms used as folder titles that require some clarification.

"General" indicates there was not sufficient material on a subject to divide into categories. Therefore the file would include a range of topics. For example, "South Africa: Bantustans - General" would include a variety of information about Bantustans as a subject and specific Bantustans. Following "General" are files on specific Bantustans, e.g., "Ciskei," indicating that there was sufficient information about Ciskei to warrant its own folder.

Bibliography is not used in the traditional sense of a list of citations, but rather is a file that includes book announcements, book reviews, or other statements about a publication of interest. Such materials can also be found interfiled within a specific subject file.

Reference files included brochures, pamphlets, statistics, and maps providing background information about a subject, usually a country.

Diplomacy files are used only in the series, "Africa: Countries," and refers to pre-independence efforts to form a new country. These files would include information on negotiations with former colonial powers, the United Nations, and/or with neighboring African countries. After independence was achieved files were labelled under the title, "politics."

Foreign Relations and Foreign Policy were not always clearly distinguished during the filing process. However, foreign policy focuses more on establishing positions related to issues while foreign relations deal with the interaction between countries based on the foreign policy.

Africa: Regions

Scope and Contents

These files are organized for the geographical regions of Africa, e.g., Central Africa. The information focuses on areas of common concern or shared interests such as weather, agriculture, ethnic groups, or resources. For example: many of the files under Southern Africa deal with the peace process in Angola (Box 22 - 23), inasmuch as several countries were involved in this effort. It is useful to also check for related materials in the files under the appropriate individual country in the series, "Africa: Countries."

Africa: Countries and Territories

Scope and Contents

This is the heart of the collection and is arranged alphabetically by country. The subjects cover a broad range of topics from health, history, military, refugees and students, to specific events, conferences, and organizations. There are related materials in other series such as "Persons," which includes files on noted personalities involved in Africa-related concerns, and "U.S. Foreign Relations," which provides insight into the United States policy toward specific African countries.

U.S. foreign relations: Africa: Subject files

Scope and Contents

In this series the beginning files focus on Africa as a continent; thereafter files are arranged alphabetically intermixing individual African countries and African regions. In distinguishing foreign policy from foreign relations -- foreign policy focuses more on establishing positions related to issues while foreign relations deal with the interaction between the countries based on the foreign policy. Within the files there is information about ambassadorial appointments, meetings with high officials, and cultural, educational, and scientific exchanges. Related materials are in the series, "U. S. Politics."

NOTE: Additional topics in this category regarding Clinton Foreign Policy are listed at the end (Accession 2000-0208).

U.S.-Africa Groups

Scope and Contents

These are U. S. groups that have some connection with Africa, such as Americans Concerned About South Africa, Gulf Boycott Coalition, and the Washington Office on Africa. These groups formed around political, humanitarian, educational or cultural concerns and range from small local entities to large national groups and branches of international organizations. Some of these organizations no longer exist either because they did not survive over time or because they were formed to respond to a specific event or issue that has passed. There are related files in series, "U.S. Groups," "North Carolina," and "World."

U.S. Groups

Scope and Contents

These groups do not have Africa-related concerns as their primary focus, although their efforts may include African issues. The groups represent a wide range of entities including foundations; political, religious, and humanitarian organizations; universities; unions; community groups; and branches of international organizations. Among the groups are the Ford Foundation, All People's Congress, National Council of Churches, Bread for the World, Peoples College, United Mine Workers, and Coalition for a New Foreign and Military Policy. Preceding the alphabetical list of group names is one folder for each letter of the alphabet that contains materials on several groups. This file was maintained when there was only one or two articles about a group and did not yet warrant starting a separate folder. There are related files in series, "U.S. Africa Groups," "North Carolina," and "World."

U.S. Media

Scope and Contents

ANS has a strong interest in how Africa is covered by the U. S. media. This series includes information on mainstream, alternative, minority and special interest publications as well as radio and television. The files provide information about the type and amount (usually lack of) coverage given to African issues by U.S. media. There are also compilations of editorials that reveal an individual media organization's viewpoint on Africa. Over time, such editorials were filed under the appropriate subject rather than by the media organization. Related materials about individual journalists and publishers are located in the series, "Persons."

U.S. Politics

Scope and Contents

This series provides background information about branches of government, political parties, ethnic groups (especially African-Americans), social issues and events that impact on U. S. politics. This series does not focus on Africa but does give the positions of groups and elected officials relative to general questions of foreign policy. Among the topics are the Congressional Black Caucus, presidential appointments, the Freedom of Information Act, The New Alliance Party, and the Ku Klux Klan. Policies of Presidents Carter, Reagan, Bush and Clinton can be found here as well as in the series "Persons." Related materials may also be found in the series "U.S. Foreign Policy."

Scope and Contents

Represented here are businesses, universities, media, political and community groups in North Carolina and broad topics about the State's economy, environment, education, and politics. Most of the files reflect activities and concerns related to African issues, but sometimes the file simply provides background information. Among the groups are Carolina Population Center, Committee for a Democratic Future, Mechanics and Farmers Bank, Davidson College, and the Carolinian. There are related files in the series "U.S. Groups," "U. S. Africa Groups," and "World."

World

General

Scope and Contents note

This series begins with a focus on broad issues that impact countries throughout the world (Box 286-310). Topics include children, commodities, finance, food, housing, migration, nuclear energy, population, tourism, trade, water, and workers. The files on commodities (e.g., cashews, gold, oil, sugar, tobacco, and uranium) include a generous amount of U. S. government reports. There are also files on international organizations (Box 305 - 306) that were involved with Africa. Files on the United Nations (Box 311-316) comprised a significant portion of this series. These files document the involvement of the UN in the formation and the economic and political development of African countries. Topics covered include aid, decolonization, education, health, and peacekeeping. There are files about various branches of the UN such as UNICEF, UNESCO, FAO, and WHO; and UN-sponsored conferences such as the Summit for the Environment, Decade for Women and International Literacy Year. This series concludes with files documenting Africa's relations with other parts of the world (Box 316-332). Topics include humanitarian aid, economic development, trade, cultural exchange and tourism. These files are organized by region or continent such as Latin America and Asia. Within each region are files for individual countries.

Persons

Scope and Contents

Files in this series are about individuals including politicians, journalists, artists, business people, and military and movement leaders. Many have a specific African connection although some may not. A few of the names found here are Muhammad Ali, Steve Biko, Shirley Temple Black, Miriam Makeba, Ronald Reagan, and Walter Sisulu. Preceding the alphabetical listing of individuals' names is a folder for each letter of the alphabet that contains materials on several people. This file was maintained when there was only one or two articles about a person and did not yet warrant starting a separate folder.

Corporations

Scope and Contents

These are files on national and international businesses. Most have African connections but not all. The companies may have been trading partners or investors or have had a role in political or military events in Africa such as divestment in South Africa, armaments, or weapons dealing. Among the corporations included are Air Afrique, De Beers Group, General Motors, Nabisco, and Sony Corporation. Preceding the alphabetical listing of corporate names is a folder for each letter of the alphabet that contains materials on several corporations. This file was maintained when there was only one or two articles about a person and did not yet warrant starting a separate folder.
