Background

Scope and Content

This collection of film advertisements and transcripts of Chinese documentary films and newsreels spans the years 1946(?) to 1985. The bulk of the materials are transcripts for the documentary films and newsreels from the Cultural Revolution (1966-1976), a time when films were popular and powerful propaganda tools for patriotism, nationalism, Chairman Mao, the Communist Party, and socialist construction. All documents in the collection are in Chinese. Topics include industry, agriculture, the economy, military matters, education, public health care, medicine and science, as well as political movements, foreign relations, cultural and sporting events. Most of the documentary filmscripts are short, focusing on a specific subject or event, whereas newsreel scripts are numbered sequentially within each year and cover multiple topics or events.

The collection also includes printed advertisements and other publicity for Chinese and foreign films, plays, opera, and local performances, as well as a newspaper clipping scrapbook. A 2006 microfilm copy of the collection is also present.

Biographical/Historical

Produced mostly by the Central Newsreel and Documentary Film Studio of China, documentary films and newsreels were two of the major mass media and communication channels in China from the 1950s through 1970s. During the Cultural Revolution, documentary films and newsreels were powerful and popular propaganda tools for patriotism, nationalism, Chairman Mao, the Communist Party, and socialist construction, and served political purposes. They covered all aspects of social activities, though the emphasis was on developments and achievements in the building of a socialist country. In order to reach even broader public audiences, government agents produced and printed the transcripts and shot lists for the films and sent them to cities and rural areas. Few of these printed materials have survived due to the poor quality of the paper upon which they were printed.

Documentary and newsreel scripts, 1946?-1985, undated

Physical Description: 3 boxes

Scope and Contents note

Transcripts and shot lists for newsreels and documentary films. These focus on specific subjects, events or personal stories. Scripts in boxes 2 and 3 are arranged by subject, then chronologically within each subject. The date on the earliest item in box 3 is questionable. There are also a few special issues. For example, a special issue in February 1966 is entitled: Chairman Mao's Good Student- Jiao Yulu. Scripts for Xin Wen Jian Bao in box 4 are arranged by number and year.
