Background

Scope and Content

This collection illustrates the causes and places that Doris Duke supported with her philanthropy through the records of her charitable foundation. Subjects include poverty and underprivileged children, education, medicine, disability, animal welfare, the performing arts (including musical prodigies Lorin Maazel and Dike Newlin), refugees, spirituality, American Indians, and county and municipal services.

Many of the local and state organizations present are/were based in New York City, New Jersey, North Carolina, Rhode Island, and Hawaii--all places with ties to Duke. Several national and international organizations are also represented.

The most common types of material include correspondence, financial records, subject files on donations, photographs, and clippings. Duke's own notations can be found in the Subject Files series, demonstrating her very close involvement.

These records were kept at the Foundation's office in New York City until March 1975, then at Duke Farms in New Jersey after (the New York Business Office was located at 30 Rockefeller Plaza until 1971, when it relocated to 505 Park Avenue).

These records appear to have been maintained by the Executive Secretary-Treasurer of the Foundation. This included Marion Paschal until her death in 1946 (although records indicate that board member Clarence E. Pickett served as Executive Secretary during this time, Paschal might have been Treasurer or had a different administrative title), Georgea T. Furst from 1946-1953 (after serving as Pickett's assistant from 1943-1946), Sophia van Theis from 1953-1957, and May E. McFarland from 1957-1975.

After the move to New Jersey, these records were maintained by secretary Elisabeth McConville, while the treasurer's duties seem to have been split off and taken on by A. E. Searles.

Biographical/Historical

The Doris Duke Charitable Foundation, Inc., formerly known as Independent Aid, Inc., was incorporated in 1934 as a philanthropic organization to operate for charitable, educational, and scientific purposes. When Doris Duke turned 21, she decided to organize a foundation in order to better manage the many requests for aid addressed to her. She reasoned that a wisely selected board of directors with broad experience could provide her with valuable input before a final conclusion was reached. She sought to help people to help themselves through education, retraining, or financial assistance during a period of stress due to reasons such as illness, unemployment, and unexpected family burdens.

The officers of Independent Aid, Inc. voted to change the organization's name to the Doris Duke Charitable Foundation, Inc. in October 1951. At this time, it's interests were primarily in education and welfare, and it did not operate directly but instead made grants to other organizations. It was supported by Duke until her death in 1993 and continues to exist as a private grant-making entity, going by the shortened Doris Duke Foundation (DDF).

Subject Files, 1934-2009

Organized into four subseries: Closed Donation Files, Open Donation Files, Denials, and Other Donation Files.

Scope and Contents

Material related to organizations and individuals that DDF interacted with, primarily around donations. Includes correspondence, tax exemptions, photographs, and clippings.

The bulk of this material comes from DDF's time in New York. Additional subject files from after their move to New Jersey can be found in the Administrative series.

Closed Donation Files, 1934-1974

Original order appears to be alphabetical.

Scope and Contents

"Closed" in this case is assumed to mean that the project or relationship in question had been completed or was no longer active. Includes correspondence, tax exemptions, photographs, and clippings.
