Background

Scope and Content

This collection documents Fisher's research, teaching, writing, and professional activities. It reflects his wide-ranging interests and expertise, including his collaboration on water management and conflict resolution issues in the Middle East; his consulting work on antitrust lawsuits for assorted corporations and the US Department of Justice; his service as a professor and mentor to numerous economics students; and his correspondence with leading economists, such as Robert Clower, Frank Hahn, Peter Diamond, and Lawrence Klein.

Biographical/Historical

Franklin Marvin Fisher (1934-2019) was a white American academic economist who was born in New York City. He received his PhD from Harvard University in 1959 and spent almost his entire career at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (1960-2004), where he was appointed the Jane Berkowitz Carlton and Dennis William Carlton Professorship of Microeconomics in 2000.

He made contributions to economic theory, econometric methods, and the empirical analysis of firm and industry behavior, and he was known for his research on aggregation theory, estimation of simultaneous equation models, and the measurement and consequences of industry concentration. Late in his career, he interest shifted to the economics of water distribution in the Middle East. He authored or coauthored 17 books and over 150 articles.

He was actively involved in antitrust policy and notably served as IBM's expert economic witness in US v. IBM (1981) and as the US Department of Justice's expert economic witness in US v. Microsoft (2001). He served as president of the Econometric Society, editor of Econometrica, and director of the National Bureau of Economic Research. He was awarded the John Bates Clark Medal in 1973.

He was married to Ellen Paradise and had three children: Abraham, Abigail, and Naomi.

Scope and Contents

Material related to Fisher's work as a legal expert on a variety of monopoly and antitrust cases, his involvement in projects like the Harvard University Middle East Water Project, his engagement with organizations like the American Bar Association and Econometric Society, and reports that he wrote or collected. Organized into five subseries: Expert Witness, Projects, Workshops, Service, and Reports.

Expert Witness, 1972-2009

Scope and Contents

Copies of Fisher's depositions, court transcripts, and supplemental research that he acquired in his role as a legal expert in a number of monopoly and antitrust cases, both as an independent scholar and as a partner of Charles River Associates. Some of the cases represented here had widespread impact on US antitrust law, including US v. IBM, Eastman Kodak v. Polaroid, and US v. Microsoft. Items occasionally note that they are confidential, but Fisher attested that they are open for research. Arranged alphabetically.
