Summary

Collection Title:

Manbites Dog Theater records, 1987-2018 and undated

Creator:

Manbites Dog Theater

Abstract:

Manbites Dog Theater was a professional non-profit theater company founded in Durham in October 1987. Manbites Dog staged a variety of theatrical productions, with a focus on premieres of new works by working closely with playwrights, directors, actors, and artists. The theater mounted over 130 productions, many of them regional or state premieres. The theater closed in 2018. Collection includes a variety of administrative documents from these productions, including marketing materials, reviews, contracts, and box-office records. Also includes administrative documents from more general theater operations.

Background

Scope and Content

Collection includes a variety of administrative documents from the company's productions. Theater Seasons consists of marketing materials, reviews, contracts, and box-office records from individual productions. Common themes throughout productions include AIDS and sexual health advocacy, sex positivity, and LGBTQ acceptance and advocacy. Some productions include photographs, scripts, and DVD and VHS recordings. Arranged chronologically by season and chronologically by production within each season. Materials from multiple or unknown seasons appear in the "Assorted seasons" sub-series. Administrative Files comprises materials more broadly related to running the theater company, including receipts, contracts, fundraising materials, and financial records. Includes some videocassettes. Arranged alphabetically by folder title.

Biographical/Historical

Manbites Dog Theater was a professional non-profit theater company founded in Durham in October 1987. Manbites Dog staged a variety of theatrical productions, with a focus on premieres of new works by working closely with playwrights, directors, actors, and artists. The theater mounted over 130 productions, many of them regional or state premieres. In March 1997, Manbites Dog purchased a building near downtown Durham to serve as a permanent performance space for the company. The building opened to the public in fall 1998. Original production included Indecent Materials, Hotline, Walking Miracles, A Tune for Tommy, Plays Well With Others, Bucknaked: A Love Story, Caleb Calypso and the Midnight Marauders, and Now You See Me. The theater ceased productions in 2018 and transitioned to becoming an organization serving Triangle-area theater artists and companies.

Jeff Storer and Edward Hunt are gay men and theater professionals who co-founded Manbites Dog Theater. They married each other in 2013. Storer is Professor of the Practice of Theater Studies at Duke University and the Artistic Director of Manbites Dog Theater. Hunt is the Managing Director and Associate Artistic Director of Manbites Dog Theater.

Theater Seasons, 1987-2018, undated

Scope and Contents

Consists of marketing materials, reviews, contracts, and box-office records related to individual productions. Marketing materials include programs, posters, flyers, postcards, and other handouts. Reviews are primarily newspaper clippings from local and regional papers such as the Raleigh News & Observer, the Durham Herald Sun, and The Independent Weekly. Contracts are between the company and a variety of performers, directors, playwrights, and artists. Box-office records are for individual performances, noting both attendance and revenue. Some productions also include correspondence, expense reports and other financial documents, scripts, photographs, and DVD or VHS recordings. Arranged chronologically by season and chronologically by production within each season. Materials from multiple or unknown seasons appear at the end in "Assorted seasons."
