Collection Title:

Marshall T. Meyer papers, 1902-2010 and undated, bulk 1984-1993

Creator:

Meyer, Marshall T.

Source:

Human Rights Archive (Duke University)

Abstract:

Rabbi Marshall T. Meyer (1930-1993) was a Conservative rabbi and human rights activist who was active in Argentina during the period of the Dirty War/El Proceso (1976-1983) and later in New York City (1983-1993). The papers span 1902-2010 with most between 1983-1994. The collection contains personal and professional correspondence from throughout Meyer's career as a religious leader and human rights activist; his published and unpublished writings and speeches; printed material collected by Meyer; working and research files organized by geography, organizations, people, and subject; personal files such as appointment books, biographical material, papers from Meyer's school days, photographs, memorabilia, and material documenting his numerous engagements; audiovisual materials related to Meyer's services, lectures, events, interviews, and other appearances by Meyer. Acquired by the Human Rights Archive.

Background

Scope and Content

The papers of Marshall T. Meyer span 1902-2010, with the majority 1984-1993, and relate to his work as a religious leader, scholar, and human rights activist. The collection contains personal and professional correspondence; his published and unpublished writings and speeches; printed material collected by Meyer; Meyer's working and research files organized by geography, organizations, people, and subject; personal files, including appointment books, biographical material, papers from Meyer's school days including Dartmouth College and the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, photographs, memorabilia, and material documenting his numerous engagements; audiovisual materials and electronic records of Meyer's services, interviews, lectures, appearances, and other events; and other assorted materials.

The collection contains extensive evidence of Meyer's activities and interests, especially those he engaged in during his tenure at Comunidad Bet-El and Seminario Rabínico Latinoamericano in Argentina, and then at Congregation B'nai Jeshurun in New York City. The files document Meyer's professional activities, including his often overlapping roles as religious leader, scholar, and human rights activist. Much of the material in the collection reflects Meyer's devotion and commitment to a socially and politically engaged Conservative Judaism and his involvement with Jewish communities around the world. Meyer was particularly involved in calling attention to human rights violations and working with the victims of violent political oppression in South and Central America in the 1970s-1980s and then in Israel, Palestine, and the Middle East in the 1980s-1990s. Meyer's extensive involvement and leadership in national and international religious, peace, and human rights organizations such as the World Council of Churches are also well-represented, as is his life-long association with his alma maters, Dartmouth College and the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

The Correspondence Series contains letters in English and Spanish written and received by Meyer (additional correspondence is also contained in Meyer's research files and electronic files). Significant correspondents include Louis Finkelstein, Abraham Joshua Heschel, and Shalom Spiegel.

The Writings and Speeches Series holds Meyer's original compositions in English, Spanish, and Hebrew. These compositions include various literary genres such as op-eds, newspaper articles, essays as well as speeches, addresses, and sermons.

The Research Files Series is subdivided into four categories: Geographic, Organizations, People, and Subject. These files may contain correspondence, notes, printed material, writings, and ephemera. The most common themes that run through this series include human rights, Jewish life, rabbinic education, Latin American Jewry, the Middle East, and Argentina's "Disappeared" during Argentina's dictatorship in 1970s-1980s. This series also includes various annotations on printed material, categorizing and filing, integration of correspondence done by Meyer.

The Printed Material Series includes newspapers, clippings, monographs, and serials that Meyer collected over the years. Subjects cover similar territory as the research files. Unlike the Research Files, this material is generally not annotated and is less organized.

The Teaching Material Series contains material from classes taught by Meyer.

The Personal Files Series includes material largely outside the scope of Meyer's professional work: photos, memorabilia, schoolwork, and appointment books.

Video and audio recordings of Meyer's engagements are found in the Audiovisual Material Series. These include lectures, speeches, interviews, television appearances, and religious services. Originals of video and audio tape are closed to use. Patrons must request use copies to access the content of the material.

The Condolences Series contains cards and notes expressing sympathy on Meyer's death. Many of these contain testimonials and reminiscences of his role as rabbi and activist.

The Electronic Files Series contains transcriptions of documents authored by or related to Meyer, many of which overlap with the content of several series including Correspondence, Writings and Speeches, Teaching Material, and Audiovisual Materials.

Later accessions not integrated into the rest of the collection are listed as separate series. They include articles, clippings, correspondence, obituaries, research notes, sermons, audiovisual materials, and other assorted materials. Topics include but not limited to human rights in Argentina and the Middle East, the Argentinian Jewish community, Dartmouth College, and Meyer's work as a religious leader.

Rabbi Marshall T. Meyer was born in 1930 and was a progressive and activist rabbi who expounded a politically engaged Conservative Judaism. For Meyer, religion was inseparable from his politics, which spanned the breadth of local, national, and international arenas.

Meyer received his education from Dartmouth College and the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, where he came under the influence of Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel. Meyer was ordained rabbi in 1958 and soon moved to Buenos Aires, Argentina with his family in 1959. During his tenure as rabbi of Comunidad Bet-El, Meyer led the reinvigoration and renaissance of Argentina's Jewish community and later established the Seminario Rabínico Latinoamericano to help train future rabbis for the Jewish community that also understood the local culture.

He also lived and worked through the political upheavals and turmoil of the 1970s and 1980s, sometimes referred to as Argentina's "Dirty War" or "El Proceso", in which the military junta of Argentina led a campaign of state terrorism, systematic forced disappearances, and other acts of violence against perceived opponents. Meyer openly spoke out against the human rights abuses perpetrated under the rule of the military junta, visiting and attempting to secure the release of prisoners ("the disappeared") in clandestine jails. Meyer was instrumental in negotiating the release of Jacobo Timerman, who later dedicated his work, Prisoner Without a Name, Cell Without a Number to Meyer. After the return of democracy to Argentina in 1983, Argentine President Raul Alfonsín recruited Meyer to serve on CONADEP (Comisión Nacional sobre la Desaparición de Personas or the National Commission on the Disappearance of Persons), which led a national investigation to establish the extent of the abuses suffered under the military junta.

Meyer returned to the United States in 1984 and took over the helm of Congregation B'nai Jeshurun, reviving the decaying New York City synagogue and transforming it into a dynamic center for Judaism in the United States. Meyer advocated for intra-religious dialogue and peace efforts, the plight of marginalized groups within the United States, human rights abuses in Central America including El Salvador, Nicaragua, and Guatemala, and for peace and respect for human rights in Israel and Palestine.

Writings and Speeches Series, 1946-2004 and undated

Physical Description: 8 boxes

Scope and Contents note

Organized into the following subseries: Speeches and Writings. Folders contain copies of written and oral works produced by Meyer in English, Spanish, and Hebrew. Detailed subseries descriptions follow below.

Speeches Subseries, 1946-1993 and undated

Physical Description: 6 boxes

Scope and Contents note

Documents three types of oral addresses given by Meyer in English, Spanish, and Hebrew: first, speeches given by Meyer (these are often final drafts of addresses to various audiences: commencements, guest lectures, etc); second, transcripts of Meyer's classical music radio show, which he conducted while attending Dartmouth College between 1946-48; third, sermon notes which are rough, handwritten notes Meyer appeared to use while addressing more informal crowds, mainly religious in nature. Many of these sermon notes are for religious services conducted during the Jewish high holidays, and the majority are written in Hebrew. Speeches and sermon notes written on small notecards have been removed from boxes 8-11 and placed in smaller notecard boxes 12-13. Some related materials can be found in the Electronic Files Series.

Physical Description: 2 boxes

Scope and Contents note

Contains newspaper and journal articles, essays, and reflections on Meyer's experience in Argentina during the 1970s. Files also house two manuscripts that appear to be collections of written and oral works by Meyer. The 1985 manuscript appears to have been assembled by Meyer before his death, while the undated sample manuscript (often referred to as "The Big Message") was compiled posthumously. Grouped by type then arranged chronologically. Some related materials can be found in the Electronic Files Series.

Research Files Series, 1902-1993 and undated, bulk 1985-1993

Scope and Contents note

Organized into the following subseries: Geographic, Organizations, People, and Subject. Files contain articles, essays, correspondence, notes, mailings, and other sources of information regarding Judaism, Latin America, human rights, peace and anti-war activism, NGO's and other areas in which Meyer was heavily involved. Although the material goes as far back as 1902, the bulk of the material is from the mid 1980s to the early 1990s. Files from Meyer's offices in Buenos Aires (up to 1984) and New York City (1984-1993) are present. All subseries are arranged alphabetically by folder title. Detailed subseries descriptions follow below.

Geographic Subseries, 1962-1993 and undated

Scope and Contents note

Contains files organized according to specific countries or regions. The bulk of the material pertains to Argentina and includes newspaper clippings, correspondence, and files related to the Dirty War/El Proceso and its aftermath. Issues and clippings from the publications Nueva Presencia and La Razón are included, as are a collection of files related to Meyer's work with the Comisión Nacional sobre la Desaparición de Personas (CONADEP). Many of the files in this series concern Jewish life, civil rights, human rights legal cases and proceedings, war and conflict, and current events. Information regarding specific judiciary cases and their relationship to Judaism and human rights is also included in several of these folders. Organized alphabetically.

Electronic Files Series, 1988-2010 and undated

Physical Description: 18.4 Gigabytes

Approximately 725 files

Scope and Contents note

Includes transcriptions written in English, Spanish, and Hebrew of documents authored by or related to Meyer, as well as an audio recording of Meyer speaking at the 1988 Eugen Rosenstock-Huessy Conference. Principally sermons given for the high holidays, files authored by Meyer also include prayers, memos, lectures, speeches, articles, columns, eulogies, letters to the editor, his 1952 Dartmouth thesis, correspondence, a summary and excerpts from a 1993 class entitled "Jewish Responses to Death" , and excerpts from the Confronting Injustice manuscript. This series also contains articles written about Meyer, transcriptions of published and unpublished interviews, speeches made at a conference about his work, and excerpts from other scholars' publications. RL00895-FL-018_Disk 018 contains the tape-counter numbers and summaries of some of the audio cassettes found in the Audiovisual Materials Series. Many of the files contain overlapping material and some are translations of work written in another language. Some files may be duplicates of documents included in the Correspondence, Writings and Speeches, and Teaching Material Series. Much of the contents of the floppy diskettes RL00895-FL-001 - RL00895-FL-020 are duplicated on RL00895-OP-001. Topics include religion, human rights, ethics, prejudice, personal words of condolence, and current events in Argentina, the U.S., and the Middle East. Arranged in original order as received.
