Background

Scope and Content

The bulk of this collection dates from Patinkin's years as an undergraduate and graduate student at the University of Chicago (beginning in 1942) and span his entire career, ending with his death in 1995. However, there is much research material that was produced earlier by others, chiefly from the 1930s. Types of material represented include correspondence; manuscripts; course material, including lectures, seminar notes, syllabi, student papers, and exams; his student notebooks; committee and other organizational files; printed material, such as articles; book contracts; academic files, including recommendations and reports; some financial and legal files; invitations; clippings; and a few photographs.

The main subjects of interest are related chiefly to Keynesian economics, but also to the neoclassical theory of value, equilibrium economics, theories of unemployment, and general monetary economics. Other subjects include the teaching of economics, the histories of Chicago University's School of Economics and Universitah ha-Ivrit bi-Yerushalayim (Hebrew University), the Israeli economy, Israeli agriculture, and social conditions in Israel and adjacent areas. Many of these subjects are discussed in Patinkin's major publications, whose drafts can also be found in the collection: these titles include Money, Interest, and Prices: An Integration of Monetary and Value Theory, Keynes' Monetary Thought: A Study of Its Development, Anticipations of the General Theory and Other Essays on Keynes, Essays on and in the Chicago Tradition, and The Israel Economy: The First Decade.

Correspondents represent almost every major economist of the 20th century, but the most prominent include Kenneth Arrow, Milton Friedman, Roy Harrod, John Hicks, Frank Knight, Harry Johnson, Simon Kuznets, Franco Modigliani, Dennis Robertson, Paul Samuelson, James Tobin, and Jacob Viner; Duke University faculty are represented by Craufurd Goodwin, Neil DeMarchi, and Roy Weintraub.

Arrangement

The Don Patinkin papers are arranged into six series: University of Chicago School of Economics, General Monetary Theory, Keynes and the History of Monetary Theory, Correspondence, Israel and Hebrew Material, and Miscellaneous.

Within each of the first three series, files are further organized into three subseries: Raw Material, Course Material, and Manuscripts and Notes. In general, Raw Material includes photocopied manuscripts of other economists, raw data, and other resources which Patinkin used in his research. The term "raw materials" was the name he invented for such research materials. Course Material includes syllabi, lecture notes, and photocopied readings which he used in his courses. Manuscripts and Notes includes reprints and various stages of drafts of the many articles and books Patinkin wrote, and typewritten or handwritten notes he made in the course of his research.

Acquisition Information

The Don Patinkin papers were received by the David M. Rubenstein Rare Book and Manuscript Library as gifts between 1995-2000.

Processing Information

Processed by D. Carson, C. Fernandez, J. Herron, Paula Jeannet, J. Krainik and S. Meardon, September 1997.

Encoded by Jackie Dean.

Within each subseries an attempt was made to organize the papers by date. This proved difficult because papers from several years may be gathered in a single folder, and the effort to organize the papers stopped short of rearranging materials within and between folders. One solution was to organize the papers by date of the book or journal article to which they were intended to contribute, and this was tried particularly in the University of Chicago School of Economics series and Keynes and the History of Monetary Theory series. This solution presented yet another problem, however: many of the papers represent research out of which sprung many articles over a long period of time. For this reason, the third (chronological) level of organization is less reliable.

Collection Inventory

University of Chicago School of Economics, circa 1941-1989

Scope and Contents

The research Patinkin conducted in writing articles on the "Chicago approach" is the basis of the University of Chicago School of Economics series. The Raw Material subseries contains drafts of his dissertation, lists of other dissertations in monetary economics written at the University of Chicago in the 1930s and 1940s (including the one written by his, and now Professor Emeritus at Duke, Martin Bronfenbrenner), and numerous reprints of articles by Frank Knight. The Manuscripts and Notes subseries includes a number of slides Patinkin used in presentations of his paper "In Search of the 'Wheel of Wealth': On the Origins of Frank Knight's Circular-Flow Diagram" which was published in 1973 and later included in Essays On and In the Chicago Tradition. The slides, which present graphically early conceptions by different economists of the "circular flow" diagram now common in undergraduate macroeconomics texts, include the amusing 1887 diagram by Fleeming Jenkin which looks like five stick-figures skipping rope. Finally, the Course Material subseries is comprised entirely of one box of notebooks Patinkin kept from his undergraduate and graduate courses at Chicago.

General Monetary Theory, circa 1933-1995

Scope and Contents

The General Monetary series contains materials related to the "neoclassical synthesis," the integration of Keynesian macroeconomics and the neoclassical theory of value pioneered by W. S. Jevons, Carl Menger, and Leon Walras, and developed by Alfred Marshall and A. C. Pigou. Patinkin's contribution to the neoclassical synthesis began in 1947 with his University of Chicago dissertation "On the Consistency of Economic Models: A Theory of Involuntary Unemployment," and reached its pinnacle with his 1956 book, Money, Interest, and Prices: An Integration of Monetary and Value Theory (MIP).

A second edition of MIP was published in 1965, and an abridged version of the second edition, with a lengthy new introduction, was published in 1989. Material related to the contents of MIP are found in the General Monetary Theory Series. They consist of drafts of both editions (in Manuscripts and Notes), coursepacks from Patinkin's "Monetary Economics" seminar at Hebrew University and elsewhere (in Course Material), and a large number of photocopied articles, representing major innovations in monetary and macroeconomics from the mid-1960s through the late 1980s, which Patinkin used in writing his introduction to the abridged second edition.

Scope and Contents

Patinkin's historical interests are the basis of the Keynes and the History of Monetary Theory series. The Manuscripts and Notes subseries includes early drafts of his Anticipations of the General Theory, and his entries on Keynes and Walras' Law for the New Palgrave Dictionary of Economics. The Course Material subseries includes coursepacks for the "History of Monetary Theory" seminar that he taught at Hebrew University, and which he viewed as essential for students in understanding the "Monetary Economics" seminar. The Raw Material subseries includes photocopied lecture notes, from a few different sources, on courses offered by Keynes and others at Cambridge in the early 1930s.

Correspondence, 1930-1995, bulk 1950-1995

Scope and Contents

The largest series is Correspondence, which consists of 42 boxes of letters between Patinkin and his professional colleagues, as well as book publishers and conference organizers. Patinkin was a prolific correspondent, and consequently this series is rich with written exchanges between Patinkin and most figures in 20th century economics. It should be noted that clippings, curriculum vitae and other personal data, and photographs can also be found in this series.

This series reflects the complex and sometimes chronologically overlapping filing structures that Patinkin himself established. As much as possible, these filing systems were left intact, but to avoid excessive overlap some chronological reorganization was necessary. With a few exceptions, the arrangement within filing groups is alphabetical. File folders representing one person's or one institution's correspondence with Patinkin may appear in several physical locations depending on the chronological periods involved. There is one indexed subseries in which Patinkin used codes representing dates; this has been left untouched.

Israel and Hebrew Material, 1944-1986

Language: Hebrew

Scope and Contents

Aside from Patinkin's interests in the history of economics, but consistent with his broader interest in macroeconomics, he followed the development of the Israeli economy and wrote occasionally on economic conditions in Israel; he was frequently called upon to serve on committees advising the Israeli government. This work is the basis of the Israel and Hebrew Materials series. Most of the papers in this series are in Hebrew, though Patinkin provided English-language translations of most titles. Correspondence can also be found in this series. Other materials referring to his activities in Israel can be found in the Correspondence series in his communications with other colleagues and friends.
