Background

Scope and Content

The Pauli Murray Center records collection include both community projects and oral history projects from undergraduate courses offered by Duke University through the Center for Documentary Studies and the Franklin Humanities Institute. Contents also include various projects documenting Parrish Street/Black Wall Street in Durham, mapping and documenting civil rights/human rights in Durham, the Still Walking for Justice March, Conferences, Fellowship Proposals, LGBT Activism, and a Brown v. Board of Education anniversary exhibit.

Biographical/Historical

Pauli Murray was born in Baltimore, Maryland on November 20, 1910, and then lived with their grandparents in Durham, NC, during their childhood, before attending Hunter College, graduating with a degree in English Literature in 1933. Murray's career encompassed a wide variety of activities, including teacher, activist, and writer. In 1938, Murray tried to enroll at the University of North Carolina, which did not admit African American students at that time. Murray conducted a press and letter-writing campaign to protest against the inadmissibility of African American students. Murray then attended Law School at Yale University, where she was the first African American person to earn a JSD (Doctor of the Science of Law) in 1965. Murray was also the first African American woman ordained as an Episcopal priest. According to the Pauli Murray Center, Murray was gender non-conforming, since they "self-described as a he/she personality in correspondence with family members". Pauli Murray died on July 1, 1985.

The Pauli Murray Center for History and Social Justice (PMC) is a non-profit organization established in 2012. It is located in Pauli Murray's childhood home in Durham, North Carolina. The PMC organizes community projects, walking tours, exhibitions, film exhibitions, and outreach activities, regarding equity and justice. The Pauli Murray Center derives from the Pauli Murray Project (PMP) established at the Duke Human Rights Center/Franklin Humanities Institute in 2009.
