Abstract:

Cookie Teer (Dorothy Foster Teer, 1941-) is a radical feminist, activist, and speaker from Durham, North Carolina. The papers date chiefly from 1983-1997, providing in-depth documentation of the social, cultural, and political debates over pornography in the United States in the 1980s and 1990s, with materials from both proponents and opponents of anti-pornography, as well as detailed documentation of the pornography industry, and transcripts from hearings organized by the Attorney General's Commission on Pornography, and other legislative activities. Other material relates to feminist activists, including Nikki Craft, Catharine MacKinnon, and Andrea Dworkin. Teer's extensive subject files also contain clippings, correspondence, interviews, and other materials pertaining to women's rights, feminists, feminist organizations and events, and social issues related to women and children such as rape, pornography, incest, prostitution, domestic violence, child custody, and child abuse. Other materials relate to her ownership of the Southern Sisters bookstore (Durham, N.C.), such as promotional materials, newsletters, events fliers, and calendars. Background

Scope and Content

The materials in the Cookie Teer papers date from 1971 to 2000, with the bulk of the collection dating between 1983 and 1997. These materials include: newspaper clippings, magazines, correspondence, photographs, meeting minutes, manuscripts, notes, published books, audio and videotapes, organizational records, and court transcripts. The collection documents Teer's activism during this period; the feminist issues with which she was concerned; feminist and anti-pornography activism in and around Chapel Hill and Durham, N.C.; and the activities of the organizations of which Teer was a member, including the National Organization for Women (N.O.W.) and Pornography Awareness.

The materials provide detailed documentation of the social, cultural, and political debates over pornography in the United States in the 1980s and 1990s, with materials from both proponents and opponents of anti-pornography legislation, as well as detailed documentation of the pornography industry, with a focus on publications such as Playboy and Hustler. Transcripts from hearings organized by the Attorney General's Commission on Pornography supplement these materials, with testimony from all sides of the pornography debate.

Teer's extensive subject files (37 boxes) contain newspaper and magazine clippings, correspondence, and printed items pertaining to women's rights, feminists, feminist organizations and events, and social issues related to women and children such as rape, pornography, incest, prostitution, domestic violence, child custody, and child abuse. Other materials relate to her ownership of the Southern Sisters bookstore (Durham, N.C.), such as promotional materials, newsletters, events fliers, several rolodex files, rubber stamps, and calendars.

The collection also contains materials related to particular feminist activists and theorists, including Nikki Craft, Catharine MacKinnon, and Andrea Dworkin.

Biographical/Historical

Dorothy "Cookie" Foster Teer was born on August 15, 1941 to Dorothy and Nello Teer, Jr. of Durham, N.C. After a stint in New York, she returned to Durham in the 1970s to go into business. After taking some courses at Duke Divinity School, she joined the committee that founded Triangle Hospice. In the early 1980s, Teer became an overnight radical feminist, activist, and speaker, giving over 400 slide shows around the United States on pornography, sex role stereotyping, and child pornography. A 1987 dinner conversation led to her co-founding of Southern Sisters Bookstore, a Durham, N.C. bookstore "by, for, and about women" that served as a haven for activism and women's experiences. By the late 1980s and 1990s, Teer was heavily involved in advocacy efforts around child custody, divorce, and domestic abuse, and frequently had "mothers on the run" living in her home. With a group of other women activists and radicals, Teer founded a writing collective called Women Against Sex; they gave a paper at a conference in New York with the same title, which is still printed in anthologies. Married and divorced twice, Teer had three children. After Southern Sisters Bookstore closed, Teer took a step back from activism, and began working as a real estate agent who, with a woman builder friend, restored and sold old houses.

Subject Files, 1971-2000

Physical Description: 37 boxes

Scope and Contents note

The Subject Files contain newspaper and magazine clippings related to violence against women and children, including materials on child abuse, child sexual abuse, rape, pornography, child custody, battered women, incest, and trafficking, as well as some academic articles on these topics.

Other materials include extensive documentation of the anti-pornography movement, including materials from Teer's involvement in Pornography Awareness, and publications and correspondence from other groups such as Women Against Pornography. Includes some documentation of anti-pornography protests, especially in and around Chapel Hill, N.C., and of the proposed Anti-Pornography Civil Rights Ordinance.

Some topical materials address the work of the Orange County Human Relations Commission, of which Teer was a member; more on this topic can be found in the Orange County Human Relations Commission Series.

The series also holds copies of Teer's speeches on various topics, correspondence, and letters to editors. Some materials document some of the work of the National Organization for Women (N.O.W.), North Carolina's chapter of N.O.W., and Chapel Hill N.O.W., and various feminist or anti-pornography symposia organized by or attended by Teer.

There are also multiple folders of materials documenting the work of feminist artist and activist Nikki Craft, as well as significant material documenting the work and writing of feminist scholar and lawyer Catharine MacKinnon.

Finally, several files relate to the women's/feminist Southern Sisters Bookstore in Durham, N.C., of which Teer was a proprietor. More materials on Southern Sisters Bookstore can be found in the Southern Sisters Series.

Arrangement is primarily alphabetical. Teer's original folder titles and organizational scheme were largely retained, with minimal revisions for purposes of clarity.
