Summary

Collection Title:

John S. Bradway papers, 1914-1991

Creator:

Bradway, John Saeger

Abstract:

Papers of John S. Bradway, lawyer, legal aid advocate, and educator. Bradway's primary interest and work was in the field of legal aid. He served as Secretary of the National Association of Legal Aid Organizations (NALAO) from 1922-1940, and as its President from 1940-1942. While at Duke University, Bradway founded and directed the Duke Legal Aid Clinic from 1931 until 1959. The bulk of the collection reflects Bradway's role as Secretary for the National Association of Legal Aid Organizations (NALAO). Some materials were gathered by John Lindsey, a colleague and friend of Bradway's, and include writings, teaching materials, and some correspondence. Materials include correspondence with various state and city legal aid bureaus, detailed statistics and annual reports from these organizations, correspondence with various national social service and aid agencies such as the National Conference on Social Work, and NALAO committee reports and conference proceedings. Also included are chapter files of his books, addresses, and articles written by Bradway on topics relating to legal aid.

Background

Scope and Content

The bulk of the collection reflects the work of John S. Bradway in his role as Secretary for the National Association of Legal Aid Organizations (NALAO). Materials include correspondence with various state and city legal aid bureaus, detailed statistics and annual reports from these organizations, correspondence with various national social service and aid agencies such as the National Conference on Social Work, and NALAO committee reports and conference proceedings. Also included are chapter files of his books, addresses, and articles written by Bradway on topics relating to legal aid. Duke Legal Aid Clinic (DLAC) materials are also present.

Bound volumes include correspondence, pamphlets, reports, and other materials related to John Bradway's work with NALAO which have been bound together into volumes. These series of volumes were numbered, and are incomplete.

Accession UA2017.0063 was gathered by John M. Lindsey, a friend and colleague of John Bradway, and includes copies of writings and teaching materials created by Bradway, as well as some correspondence and materials related to Bradway's death.

Biographical/Historical

John S. Bradway was born Feb. 17, 1890 in Swarthmore, Pennsylvania to William and Jennie S. Bradway. He graduated from Haverford College with an A.B. in 1911 and an A.M. in 1915. He received his law degree from University of Pennsylvania in 1914 and received an honorary law degree from Haverford in 1957. Bradway began his academic teaching career at the University of Pennsylvania where he taught in the Sociology Department from 1927 to 1928. At the same time, he taught at the Pennsylvania School of Social and Health Work (1927-1929). In 1929 he moved to California and began a short career at the University of Southern California Law School (1929-1931). Bradway moved to Durham in 1931 where he taught law at Duke from 1931 to 1959. After leaving Durham, Bradway taught at the Hastings College of Law in San Francisco and at California Western University until his retirement in 1970. Bradway was married to Mary Henderson in 1921. He died on January 2, 1985 in Eureka, California.

Bradway's primary interest and work was in the field of legal aid. He served as Secretary of the National Association of Legal Aid Organizations (NALAO) from 1922-1940, and as its President from 1940-1942. While at Duke, Bradway founded and directed the Duke Legal Aid Clinic from 1931 until 1959. The purpose of the Clinic was to provide practical training for law students. They participated in practical activities such as conferring with clients, gaining interview skills, and preparing a real case for trial. Students acquired skills in legal writing through the preparation of trial briefs and legal memoranda. The Clinic served clients who were unable to pay counsel fees, most often the indigent, immigrants, minorities, and servicemen. In addition to Bradway, the Clinic had a staff of five members of the North Carolina State Bar who assisted in educational and supervisory activities, as well as representing the Clinic's clients in court. Bradway lobbied throughout his career for law schools to make a commitment for student training through legal aid clinics.

Bradway's service to the legal aid community was extensive. He chaired the legal aid committees of the Pennsylvania and North Carolina Bar Associations, as well as the Legal Aid Clinics Committee of the Association of American Law Schools. He was also an active member of the National Conference of Social Work, the American Association of Social Workers, the International Bar Association, and served as chair of the Research Committee for the Interprofessional Commission on Marriage and Divorce Laws.

His dedication to social service and legal aid extended to state and local organizations. He served as president of the North Carolina Conference for Social Service, North Carolina Mental Hygiene Society, State Legislative Council, and as director of the North Carolina League for Crippled Children. In Durham, Bradway was president of the Durham Council of Social Agencies, Family Service Agency, Rotary Club, and the Crime Study Club. He was a member of the Advisory Board of the Durham Child Guidance Clinic, Salvation Army Home and Hospital, YWCA, and Community Chest. In addition, he was chair of a committee appointed by the Durham City Council to establish a Juvenile Court in 1933, and of a committee appointed to study sub-standard housing in 1948.

Bradway wrote extensively on the topic of legal aid. His publications include: How To Organize a Legal Aid Clinic (1931); Forms of Legal Aid Organizations (1940); Duke University Legal Aid Clinic Handbook (1954); The History of a Lawsuit (1958); How to Practice Law Effectively (1958).

General Note

Bound volumes were scheduled for disbinding in 2014; Z Volumes 12, 21, 30, 31, 35, 37, 38, 39, 40, and 45 were disbound by Conservation and placed in Hollinger boxes, before determining the process was too intensive for condition and anticipated use. During re-processing for accurate description and box numbers, TS Archivist Tracy Jackson determined some volumes (not yet reviewed by Conservation) would be in need of conservation treatment and disbinding in order to withstand use. After consulting with TS Head Kat Stefko, University Archivist Val Gillespie, and Conservator Erin Hammeke, those volumes identified as being in poor condition would be boxed separately and marked for Conservation treatment after use.

Volumes, 1922-1934

Scope and Contents

This series includes correspondence, research documents, pamphlets, court cases, and other materials which have been bound together into volumes. There are three separate series of volumes, which were numbered, and all of which are incomplete.

NALAO documents consist of pamphlets, reports, correspondence, and other documents relating to the formation, activities, and committees of the National Association of Legal Aid Organizations (NALAO).

Ellis Estate volumes consist of court documents, correspondence, research materials, and other materials related to the 1920s court case of the Charles R. Ellis trust established to create the Ellis School for Fatherless Girls and aid societies contesting the terms of the will that established the trust. This collection includes volumes 3, 5, and 6, while volumes 1, 2, and 4 are held at the Duke University Law Library. Catalog record for these volumes here.

Z volumes consist of John S. Bradway's correspondence during his tenure as Secretary of NALAO, and include correspondence with individuals and groups in cities and regions seeking to establish a legal aid society as well as existing legal aid societies.
