Bazemore, Timothy, undated
Scope and Contents

Timothy Bazemore, Sr. is a native of Bertie County, NC. Bazemore was inducted into the army in 1945 and was scheduled for assignment in Japan the day the atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima. After returning to the United States in 1947, he became an entrepreneur in the logging and farming industries until 1967. Bazemore was involved in many community activities during that time, one of which was the organization of a tutorial program in the 1960s that was instrumental in getting aides for teachers into the classrooms of the Bertie County School system. He then went on to found the Good Neighbor Council, a biracial group designated to combat race relation issues. While studying brick masonry under the GI Bill, he was offered a position through Choanoke Area Development Association (CADA) and the North Carolina Fund to work with the Relocation Program moving families from rural eastern North Carolina to the Piedmont Area. He initiated the Woodard Home Grown Food Project - "Growing Food for All Families" and became active on the CADA Board of Directors while he worked to save the Bertie County sewing industry. In order to rebuild it, he started an employee-owned operation in the manufacture of children's clothing called "Workers Owned." It grew from 5 employees to 70 people and developed contracts as large as a half a million dollars with companies such as Kmart. Finally, Bazemore was inducted into the North Carolina Community Action Association Hall of Fame in 2009.

Unita Blackwell is a civil rights activist who was the first African American woman to be elected mayor in the state of Mississippi. Blackwell, who served as mayor of Mayersville, Mississippi from 1976 to 2001, was also the president of the National Conference of Black Mayors in 1990. Born to sharecropper parents in the Mississippi Delta, she was a founding member of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party and a friend to the late Fannie Lou Hamer. Blackwell was later a project director for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee which helped organize voter drives to encourage African American voting across Mississippi. Blackwell's activism in housing and other rural issues helped promote the idea of "maximum participation of the poor" in the federal War on Poverty.

Campbell, Emory, undated
Scope and Contents

Emory Campbell is executive director emeritus of the Penn Center on St Helena Island, S.C. The Penn Center, founded in 1862, is one of the oldest and most historically significant African American cultural and educational institutions in the United States. He continues to do African American heritage tours of the Sea Islands, to work with other communities to preserve the property rights of African Americans on the Sea Islands (in the face of creeping development), and to write and publish about Gullah-Geechee history and culture.

Dorsey, L. C., undated
Scope and Contents

L. C. Dorsey, a civil rights activist, worked with Fannie Lou Hamer in the development of Freedom Farm Cooperative and other projects. Dorsey, who spent her early childhood on a Delta plantation, earned a doctorate in social work from Howard University and has worked as director of programs of Delta Ministries and associate director of the Southern Coalition on Jails and Prisons. She joined the Delta Health Center in 1967 to direct its North Bolivar County Farm Cooperative. From 1988 to 1995, Dorsey served as the Executive Director for the Delta Health Center in Mound Bayou, Mississippi, providing complete family medical care and social services for widespread poor populations. She then worked as a clinical associate professor in the Family Medicine Department at the University of Mississippi Medical Center.

Senator J. William Fulbright was a US senator for Arkansas from 1945 to 1974. At the time, he was known for his opposition to the Vietnam War and House Un-American Activities Committee, as well as for being the longest serving chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Today, he is probably best remembered for the international exchange program that bears his name: the Fulbright Program.

Goldstone, Richard, 1997 October 20 (online item available)

Digital Object: Goldstone, Richard, 1997-10-20

Scope and Contents

Richard Goldstone is an honorable judge from South Africa who has worked both in his own country and abroad to adjudicate political conflicts. In South Africa, he played a pivotal role in using the law to undermine apartheid-era laws like the Group Areas Act which mandated segregation. Goldstone was later tasked with leading a commission to investigate political violence in the country during the transition out of apartheid. Later, he worked with the United Nations to prosecute war crimes in Rwanda and Yugoslavia.

Gresham, Emma, undated
Scope and Contents

Emma R. Gresham is a retired schoolteacher and former mayor of Keysville, Georgia. Gresham helped restore the government of Keysville in 1985, fifty years after it had been dismantled, disenfranchising a largely black community of their voting rights. Gresham became mayor in 1988, as the result of the first Municipal Election to be held in fifty-five years. As mayor, she achieved basic services for her community including indoor plumbing, which most of the residents did not have, sanitation pick-up, a library, fire protection, a health clinic, playground, streets named, city lights, the participating Certified Literacy Program, and a sewage grant. Gresham was an Essence Awards Honoree and was named one of the One Hundred Eckerd Women, which recognizes women with above excellent volunteer records in the United States.

King, Calvin, undated
Scope and Contents

Calvin R. King Sr., is executive director of the Arkansas Land and Farm Development Corporation, a non-profit, community development organization, which he founded in 1980 in Arkansas. King, a 1975 graduate of Philander Smith College, returned to his home in Lee County, Arkansas, in the late 1970s to help minority and disadvantaged family farmers hold on to their land and convert to more profitable nontraditional crops. He has received a number of awards for his efforts, including a MacArthur Fellowship in 1990.

Lodge, Herman, undated
Scope and Contents

Herman Lodge (d. 2005) was president of the Burke County Improvement Association in Waynesboro, Georgia, and a county commissioner. Lodge filed several landmark voting rights cases during the 1970's and 1980's, including Lodge v. Buxton and Lodge v. Rogers. In 1982 the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in his favor, expanding the Justice Department's authority in redistricting cases. That year, Lodge and another black candidate were elected to the county board of commissioners.

Maggard, Charles "Buck", 1992 September 25
Scope and Contents

Charles "Buck" Maggard (d. 1999), of Vicco, Kentucky, was community liaison for Appalshop, Inc., and its Headwaters Television and WMMT-FM public affairs programming. Maggard, a seasoned political activist, served as Appalachian coordinator for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and field coordinator of Appalachian Volunteers in the late 1960s. He also served as a staff member at the Highlander Research and Education Center in the early 1970s and early 1980s. In addition, Maggard, a former coal miner, worked as a paralegal advocating for miners dealing with black lung, social security, and pension claims. Interviewed by Robert Korstad, Kevin D. Gorter Professor of Public Policy and History.

Marshall, Ray, undated
Scope and Contents

F. Ray Marshall is the former secretary of Department of Labor under President Jimmy Carter. Under Marshall, DOL played a major role in Carter's economic stimulus program, instituting major expansions in public service and job training programs. Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) programs were strengthened and "common sense priorities" led to focus on major health problems. Mine Safety and Health Administration was created to protect nation's miners. Many federal equal employment opportunity programs were consolidated under Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs, and women's programs were strengthened.

Michael I, King of Romania, 1921-2017, 1991

February 11 (online item available)

Digital Object: Michael I, King of Romania, 1921-2017, 1991-02-11

Scope and Contents

Michael I was twice the king of Romania; first, as a young child after his father eloped and renounced the role, and second as a young adult as the country allied with Nazi Germany. Although deposed by the Soviets in 1947 in the place of the new Communist dictatorship, King Michael played an instrumental role in the convoluted politics of Eastern Europe during the Second World War. In particular, he helped to orchestrate a coup of the German-backed dictator of Romania, Ion Antonescu, in August of 1944, and sought to counter the increasing involvement of Moscow in post-war Romanian politics.

Mokgoro, Yvonne, undated
Scope and Contents

Yvonne Mokgoro is a former justice of the South African Constitutional Court. She was appointed by Nelson Mandela in 1994, and served until she retired in 2009 at the end of her 15-year term. Along with Albie Sachs, she played a pivotal role not only in landmark judicial decisions, but also in shaping the iconography of the court, particularly its focus on ubuntu and community-based justice.

Neal, Olly, Jr., undated
Scope and Contents

Olly Neal, Jr., a former Court of Appeals Judge, was appointed as interim judge for the 1st Judicial District in eastern Arkansas in January, 2010. Judge Neal was a prosecuting attorney in Lee County, Arkansas, where he was born and reared. In 1970, when he was 28 years old, Neal returned to Lee County to become administrator of the Lee County Cooperative Clinic in Marianna. As administrator, he worked with VISTA volunteers, led an economic boycott of downtown businesses, and encouraged residents to take control of clinic services, which included efforts to improve access to food stamps, repair housing, and construct sanitary privies.

O'Loughlin, Father Frank, undated

Scope and Contents

Father Frank O'Loughlin heads the Migration and Refugee Service of the Archdiocese of Palm Beach. He assisted in developing the CORN-Maya project which based its philosophy on the indigenous culture, identity, and values of the Maya. Its goals are to promote legal defense, economic and social development, and the adaption of the Maya in the US with dignity. The Irish-born Roman Catholic priest founded the Mayan Guatemalan Center in Lake Worth 20 years ago. The center, FEMA and other charities are partners trying to get food, housing and supplies to some of Palm Beach County's poorest residents. Many migrant and day laborers have moved to shelters because their homes have no electricity.

Ozal, Turgut, 1991 March 26 (online item available)

Digital Object: Ozal, Turgut, 1991-03-26

Scope and Contents

Turgut Özal was the Prime Minister, from 1983 to 1989, and President of Turkey, from 1989 to 1993. He advocated for neoliberal policies, working to deregulate the Turkish economy. His tenure was marked also by his support for the coalition against Iraq in the 1991 Gulf War. Özal was interviewed on March 26, 1991.

Prejean, Charles, undated

Scope and Contents

Charles Prejean is assistant professor of political science and director of the Institute for Social, Economic, and Political Studies at Xavier University in New Orleans. A veteran of the civil rights movement, he was executive director of the Federation of Southern Cooperatives from 1967 to 1984. As federation director, Prejean led a farm cooperative movement that supported and coordinated bootstrap economic development efforts of about 30,000 mostly black, low-income rural families organized into 130 cooperatives across the South.

Steele, Michael, undated

Scope and Contents

At the time of this interview, Steele was perhaps most famous for being the first black politician elected to an executive position in a statewide election in Maryland when he won the lieutenant governorship in 2002. In this interview, Professor Kerry Haynie centers his questions on Steele's impressions of the upcoming presidential election and presidential candidate Obama, his experiences as a black Republican in a historically white party, and the future of the GOP post election.

Waller, S. Maxine, undated
Scope and Contents

S. Maxine Waller of Ivanhoe, Virginia, started the Ivanhoe Civic League in 1986 to organize community economic development, education, and housing in her mountain town of 1,500 in southwest Virginia. Through her efforts, the League has employed 47 people, raised more than $500,000 from foundations and other sources, successfully lobbied the governor and other state officials for housing money, and started education programs in what used to be the company store of the mining firm that left town in 1981.
